

Top 7 Reasons IM Missionaries Love WAC Groups

Top Seven Reasons IM Missionaries Love WAC Groups

1. Your giving spirit. WAC groups give to missionaries' accounts and send money for personal use at holidays. You don't just say "people should support missions," you support missions! You are always ready to help missionaries.

2. Free Will Baptist women know how to pray for missionaries. You keep up with prayer requests and ask if they have been answered. You faithfully pray for missionaries during times of sickness or discouragement. Missionaries love knowing thousands of women are praying for them.

3. The provision closet has blessed missionaries for over 50 years. This allows missionaries to make their house a home for ministry. Some missionaries have moved provision closet items all over the world and are still using them today.

4. Sending cards, emails, and packages. Not only do you send cards for birthdays and holidays, but you send cards to missionary kids. This small effort means a world of difference to someone who is away from family.

5. You care! You let missionaries know through your words and actions that you care about their families and their ministries. You care for their grown children when they are here in the States without parents. You let our missionaries know they are loved and they are not alone.

6. You express an interest in every aspect of missionaries' lives. You provide opportunities for them to visit with you and share about their ministries. But more often, these meetings turn into a huge encouragement for them. You are a huge part of their ministry.

7. You provide for their practical needs. In doing so, you reduce their stress in many areas. If you find a specific need, whether it is dietary, a specific item needed for ministry, or a simple want, you have the willpower to "move mountains."

Top Seven Reasons IM Missionaries Love WAC Groups

1. Your giving spirit. WAC groups give to missionaries' accounts and send money for personal use at holidays. You don't just say "people should support missions," you support missions! You are always ready to help missionaries.

2. Free Will Baptist women know how to pray for missionaries. You keep up with prayer requests and ask if they have been answered. You faithfully pray for missionaries during times of sickness or discouragement. Missionaries love knowing thousands of women are praying for them.

3. The provision closet has blessed missionaries for over 50 years. This allows missionaries to make their house a home for ministry. Some missionaries have moved provision closet items all over the world and are still using them today.

4. Sending cards, emails, and packages. Not only do you send cards for birthdays and holidays, but you send cards to missionary kids. This small effort means a world of difference to someone who is away from family.

5. You care! You let missionaries know through your words and actions that you care about their families and their ministries. You care for their grown children when they are here in the States without parents. You let our missionaries know they are loved and they are not alone.

6. You express an interest in every aspect of missionaries' lives. You provide opportunities for them to visit with you and share about their ministries. But more often, these meetings turn into a huge encouragement for them. You are a huge part of their ministry.

7. You provide for their practical needs. In doing so, you reduce their stress in many areas. If you find a specific need, whether it is dietary, a specific item needed for ministry, or a simple want, you have the willpower to "move mountains."

Top 7 Reasons IM Missionaries Love WAC Groups

